“ Howard and I were both new students in third grade and became friends. We remained friends throughout elementary and middle school; and then he become my true love and we were high school sweethearts. We stayed together through college and afterwards, he became my husband. We then had a beautiful daughter named Madi to add to our family and I cherish all of our memories made together.

Even though we divorced years ago, Howard was the love of my life, and I feel so blessed and honored to have been with him throughout his last two weeks. I have always, and will always love and keep him alive in my heart.
